CLIENT

Dwr Cymru Welsh Water (DCWW) are a not profit company employing over three thousand staff across Wales. Their company commitment statement being, "We are the only water company of its kind in the UK. We don't have shareholders, which means we put every penny back into looking after your water and our beautiful environment – now and for years to come". Dwr Cymru are also committed to the Welsh Government's Well-being future generations Act, not only for their staff but the wide community and the environment.

PROJECT DELIVERY

The delivery of the project was challenging. The new furniture, acoustic rafts and bespoke elements required to meet the brief all had to be installed in phases to minimise disruption to DCWW business. To achieve this the scheme was delivered in phases with just in time deliveries tightly co-ordinated with the desk top IT teams to ensure seamless business continuity.

BRIEF

Create a working environment that went beyond flexibility and embraced a holistic approach to hybrid work. To achieve this bbi worked with Dwr Cymru to take into account the perspectives of employees, management, HR and operations. BBI recognise that when it comes to implementing hybrid work, prioritizing employee satisfaction and engagement is of vital Importance.

PROJECT DELIVERY

Health and safety are always and the fore front of any project, delivering this project safely whilst working in an occupied office required special attention to detail and overseen by BBI's compliance team. BBI's quality assurance procedures ensured that all of the furniture was delivered and install on time and on budget.
